SOUTH AMERICA

Once a great Inca city, Machu Picchu had been all but forgotten until the early 20th century. In 1911, local Peruvians led archaeologist Hiram Bingham to Machu Picchu's ruins, and his landmark research at the site was rewarded with the very first National Geographic archaeological grant. Now, nearly a century and more than 350 grants and expeditions later, our connection with the ancient cultures and breathtaking landscapes of the Andean Altiplano continues.

Inspired by our history of exploration, we recently spent time in Peru's and Bolivia's family workshops and village markets. There, indigenous Quechua and Aymara craftsmen pay homage to their Inca and Tiwanaku heritage through handmade objects often created using the techniques of their ancestors. We hope you enjoy these remarkable treasures, and please remember that your purchases help support the National Geographic mission, including the conservation of our shared cultural resources.

With kind regards,

A. Bolivian Alpaca Rainbow Shawl

For generations the indigenous women of Bolivia have wrapped themselves in hand-loomed shawls created from alpaca wool dyed the colors of the Altiplano. This lightweight alpaca shawl is the same indigenous garment, created in an artisan workshop in La Paz using a traditional palette of colored stripes. By tradition, the artisans recycle every last bit of yarn left on the end of a spindle. 100% alpaca. Colors may vary. Dry clean only. Woven on hand looms in Bolivia. Approximately 24"W x 68"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72548 Bolivian Alpaca Rainbow Shawl $48.00

B. Inca Flower Earrings

These sterling silver earrings were inspired by carvings of Kantuta flowers—the sacred flower of the Inca—on the Iglesia de San Francisco church in La Paz, Bolivia. The church is one of the city's landmarks of baroque-mestizo architecture, a style that combines indigenous traditions with designs from Spanish colonial art. Collaborating with Andean silversmiths, the Bolivian designer is able to transform his sketches into wearable art. 1 3/4"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72547 Bolivian Inca Flower Earrings $48.00

C. Bolivian Suede Tote With Tapestry

Using a centuries-old technique, Bolivian families weave mantas—beautiful woolen textiles in geometric patterns—for use as bedding and apparel. Today, artisans take pieces of vintage mantas and frame them in soft suede and durable leather to create these beautiful totes. Each features zip closure and roomy interior compartment with cell phone and sunglasses pockets. As each manta is unique, please expect some variation in color and pattern. Handmade in Bolivia. Handles are 15 1/2"L. 14"W x 11 3/4"H x 3 1/2"D. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72047 Bolivian Suede Tote $78.00

Choose Red (RD) or Brown (BR). See page 4 for Goldenrod (GD).

D. Andean Leather Travel Jacket

When your itinerary takes you to cooler climates, reach for this Andean leather travel jacket. A classic addition to your travel wardrobe, the rich, dark brown leather is partially lined with pure alpaca wool for a bit of extra warmth. Designed by Bolivian artisans to have the extra pockets that travelers need, including two front patch pockets, an inside secured passport pocket, and a generous flap pocket for your wallet and room key. Handmade in Bolivia. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72621 Andean Leather Travel Jacket $349.00

D. São Paulo Mouth-blown Art Glass Vase

In the 13th century, Venetian glassblowers were forced to move to the island of Murano to keep their trade secrets under wraps. By the early 20th century, many had migrated throughout the world, including to São Paulo, Brazil. There, third-generation master glassblower Antonio Carlos creates this sweeping and substantial art glass vase, keeping the culture of his ancestors alive while drawing inspiration from the South American landscape.

Approximately 6" W x 11 1/2" H x 3" D.

#72424 São Paulo Glass Vase $128.00

C

C. Fulani Earrings

This traditional West African jewelry is created by Fulani craftsmen in Mali. One of the largest groups of nomadic herders in Africa, the Fulani customarily wore their wealth in the form of gold jewelry that they could carry with them at all times. Based on a design that has been worn for centuries, our lightweight earrings are handcrafted from hammered brass that is plated with bright 24-karat gold. 12-karat gold hinged earwires.

Approximately 1 1/2" L.

E. Bolivian Suede and Manta Jacket

The Aymara live in a land of rich and deep cultural traditions, and like many of Bolivia's indigenous peoples are direct descendants of the pre-Inca Tiwanaku culture. This suede jacket is accented at the pocket with a piece of vintage manta, a traditional woven textile made by the Aymara. An exquisite example of the attention to detail that exemplifies Bolivian crafts, the jacket is finely handmade by local artisans, and the luxuriously soft suede is accented with traditional alpaca fringe. Please expect some variation in the manta pieces. Button closure. Lined. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72620 Bolivian Suede Jacket $228.00

Women's sizes S (4-6), M (8-10), L (12-14), XL (16-18).

E. Bolivian Tiwanaku Scarf

For more than 500 years beginning around 200 B.C., the pre-Inca Tiwanaku culture thrived in what is now the Bolivian Altiplano. This culture was characterized by large stone sculptures, ceramics, and carvings—all made with a distinctive, abstract style that defines this Andean prehistoric art. Our 100% alpaca scarf incorporates ancient Tiwanaku iconography and is handmade in Bolivia by local artisans. 7 1/2" W x 68" L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

A. Peruvian Reverse-glass Mirror

The ancient art of reverse-glass painting was brought to Peru by Spaniards in the 15th century. Local artisans emulated the style found on mirrors and other Spanish household objects, and with time their style evolved until it became recognized as a Peruvian tradition. This mirror is a gorgeous functional example of this traditional art form.

B. Ceramic Chulucana Birds

One of the richest pre-Columbian cultures, the Vicus developed an elaborate pottery technique that has come to be known as the Chulucana style. Today, talented artisans follow ancient tradition as they form, smoke, polish, and then carefully hand-paint this family of doves. Captivating with their colorful intensity and elegant design, the pieces stand as a symbol of peaceful traditions, and their creation is a spiritual practice for the artists. Handcrafted in Peru. Mother dove is 3 1/2"W x 3 1/2"H x 5"D. Baby doves are 1 1/2"W x 2"H x 2 3/4"D. NGS EXCLUSIVE

Nasca Lines of Peru

Peru's coastal Sechura desert is crisscrossed with short rivers and dotted with towns both large and small, but its most unique feature can be seen only from the sky. In the early days of air travel, pilots spotted massive designs drawn in the earth—images of animals, insects, and abstract geometric patterns. These geoglyphs, some almost 1,000 feet long, were created by the Nasca people between 600 and 200 B.C. Though their purpose remains a mystery, some experts suggest that they are giant ritualistic drawings to thank the gods for the water that came from the Andes; others think they were "walking temples" where many worshippers would tread the same pattern over and over, carving it into the ground.

C. Nasca Hummingbird Pima Cotton Shirt

Discovered in the 1920s when aerial views first became possible, the Nasca lines are geoglyphs covering 400 square miles of the desert plateaus of southern Peru. As early as 600 B.C., the Nasca created these earth etchings possibly as signs of gratitude toward the gods. This incredibly soft long-sleeved shirt reproduces local artist Yolanda Caruso's favorite Nasca etching of a hummingbird. Machine wash. Made in Peru of high-quality 100% Peruvian pima cotton. F. Wari Ceramic Plate

This decorative plate by Peruvian master ceramist Percy Paucar incorporates patterns and motifs from the pre-Inca Wari culture. The Wari were a highly advanced civilization that ruled the Andes region for about 400 years, until A.D. 1000. Handmade in Paucar's family studio, where he learned his craft from his parents and grandparents. For decorative use only. 11 1/2" diameter. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72577 Wari Ceramic Plate $48.00

D. Peruvian Reverse-glass Tray

Reverse painting on glass is a meticulous process where layers of paint are applied in reverse order to the back of a piece of glass. When complete it is installed over a piece of gilded wood, adding a rich dimension to the design. The art requires a steady hand and many years of study and practice. Popular in Europe during the Renaissance, the tradition was brought to Peru by the Spanish. It has evolved in Peru to include elements of the natural environment, such as the Kantuta flowers gracing this tray.

National Geographic Presents the Eighth Edition of the World's Finest Atlas

A. Combining state-of-the-art cartographic technology with dynamic and diverse cultural content, our award-winning atlas was more than a year in the making. It was developed using advanced Geographic Information Systems (GIS), satellite imagery, and shuttle radar mapping. This is the first time that a fully global data set was available to our cartographers, enabling them to put together the most technologically advanced and precise atlas we've ever created. Features of our latest atlas include...

- 15,000 changes made between the Seventh and the Eighth Editions.
- More than 400 full-color maps and charts.
- A comprehensive, cross-referenced index of 140,000 place-names.

- A detailed appendix of reference information, such as foreign terms, metric conversions, time zones, and temperature statistics.
- The unique Ehlermann binding, which enables the atlas to open completely flat so that no information is lost in the center.

Our Eighth Edition Atlas of the World is published with the highest production quality and is the most accurate—and most thorough—volume of its kind. The hardcover edition is protected by an elegant slipcase. 12 1/2" x 18 1/2". 416 pages. © 2005

A. Peruvian Pachamama Opal Jewelry

Considered a gift from Pachamama, the goddess of fertility, good fortune, and nature, rich blue-green Peruvian opal was used by native Inca in ritual and jewelry for millennia. Today a group of artisans uses this ancient material—still revered by Quechua Indians, descendants of the Inca—to craft versatile accessories with a deep connection to the past and to Mother Earth. Each stone bears the unique marks of the earth in which it was formed and will therefore vary in color from light shades of sky blue to darker turquoise. Each is traced with a sterling silver bezel, believed in Peruvian mythology to be the tears of the moon. Handmade in Peru. Necklace is 16 1/2"L and pendant is 1"W. Bracelet is 7 1/2"L. B. Silk Road Beaded Bag

Traders crossing the Silk Road through Tibet often brought prized objects from the Mediterranean, including vibrant red coral. Paired with local turquoise and traded cowrie shells, jewelry and decor made from these precious objects became heirlooms passed from mother to daughter. This petite and textured bag pays homage to these traditions, with alternating stripes of faux versions of coral and turquoise paired with cowrie shells, amber-colored beads, and patterned wooden embellishments. D. Himalayan Earth and Sky Necklace

In Tibet, turquoise (called gyu) and coral are two of the most highly valued materials. Turquoise has been used as currency, and coral is a precious trade object in this landlocked mountainous country. Nomadic people of the region frequently wear many pieces of turquoise and coral jewelry at once, as spiritual protection and as a way to keep their wealth at hand. By pairing faux versions of these stones with carnelian and handmade nickel and silver-plated beads, jewelers living on the Tibetan/Indian border re-create this traditional Himalayan design. 24"L.

E. Zardozi Embroidered Tunic

The historic threads of India's regional textile arts come alive in the zardozi embroidery embellishing this cotton blouse. Zardozi, as originally practiced by men creating fabrics for the maharajah in northern India, used fibers of real silver and gold. Here, metallic and black stitches trace a textured medallion of faux turquoise beads and pearls on a white cotton tunic. Hand-wash or dry clean. Hand-embroidered. Made in India. NGS EXCLUSIVE

F. Indian Block Print Travel Skirt

Yards of lightweight cotton stretch across a long wooden table in a textile workshop in Rajasthan. With sharp raps, an artisan moves along the table, stamping inked carved wooden blocks on the fabric. Centuries-old Indian textile traditions involve embellishing fabrics with hand block-printing. Here, this gold-hued block printing adorns a double-layered rich chocolate brown cotton travel skirt that looks great even after the most taxing journey. Roll and twist it in a ball when packing, and it comes out with the irregular folds that give the skirt its shape. Elastic drawstring waist. Hand-wash. Made in India. NGS EXCLUSIVE

G. Miniature Egyptian Glass Ornaments

Using a technique that has been in use since the 13th century, artisans in Egypt hand-blow these traditional glass ornaments, making each a one-of-a-kind creation. Varying in size and shape, they are hand-painted in subtle, translucent hues that reflect light and are then accented with 24-karat gold. Hang them in a sunny window for year-round appreciation or keep them as beautiful holiday heirlooms. Handmade in Egypt. Set of five. 2-4"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE
 #72099 Set of Five Miniature Glass Ornaments $32.00

E. Historic Gift of Ancient Kings

Though many people know of the legendary gifts of the Magi, few have experienced the extraordinary scent of frankincense and myrrh. These fragrant resins, used by ancient Greeks and Romans for medicinal and religious purposes, can be enjoyed on your evening fire or as incense. Our special set comes in an intricately inlaid wooden box that itself comes in a beautiful velvet pouch. 8"W x 2"H. NGS EXCLUSIVE

C. Himalayan Mountain Stone Necklace

A mandala is symbolic of the infinite, and at its center is often found a lotus, representing enlightenment. The idea of mandalas can first be found in the Rig Veda, the oldest book in any Indo-European language, dating back to 1500 B.C. This mandala also incorporates the Tibetan dorje, a thunderbolt symbolic of the indestructibility of the Buddha's teachings. Laboriously hand-carved of Himalayan mountain stone by Newari artisans in Nepal, this meaningful pendant is suspended from a 16-20" adjustable sterling silver chain. 1 1/2" diameter. NGS EXCLUSIVE
#72540 Himalayan Mountain Stone Necklace $168.00

B. Rajasthani Dancer Earrings

Rajasthani women in India's northwestern desert are known for their elaborate silver jewelry, including anklets dangling with bells and charms that jingle lightly as they walk and become wildly percussive during dancing. Elements from a tribal anklet are recast as textured sterling silver earrings. Delicate lapis lazuli beads from Afghanistan provide a dash of color as the finishing touch. Handcrafted by master silversmiths in India. 2"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE
#72004 Rajasthani Dancer Earrings $48.00

D. Folkloric Boiled-wool Jacket

Beginning in the 18th century, the art of rosemaling, or flower painting, spread in rural Norway as artists traveled from village to village, decorating churches and homes. The hand-stitched patterns that adorn this square-neck, perfect-for-layering, oatmeal-colored jacket are inspired by elements of this decorative folk art. The traditional pewter clasps enhance the Scandinavian artistry of the naturally wind-resistant and quick-drying boiled wool. Dry clean. Imported. NGS EXCLUSIVE

E. Handcrafted Bolivian Leather Bag

Leather craftsmen from rural Bolivian villages travel to the capital of La Paz to practice their craft and sell their wares in local markets. Their intricate tooling techniques reflect indigenous patterns as well as colonial Spanish arts and give dimension to natural leather goods. The undulating patterns they have tooled on this naturally dyed bag mimic the peaks and valleys of the Andes. The whip-stitched sides add a rustic touch to a rich and sophisticated accessory. Fully lined with zippered inside pocket. Handcrafted in Bolivia. Handles are 10"L. 13 1/2"W x 9"H. NGS EXCLUSIVE

A UNIQUE COLLECTION OF
HANDMADE ARTISTRY

Some favorite objects from our cultural explorations

A. Sawankhalok Stoneware Jar

More than seven centuries ago, artisans in the ancient Thai city of Sawankhalok began creating some of the most exquisite pottery in Asia. Glazed stoneware jars with swirling designs of leaves and lotus flowers were prized as far away as the Philippines and the Middle East. Our jar is created using traditional methods and is a fine example of the region's cultural history. Handmade in Thailand. 11" diameter x 12"H.

#72536 Sawankhalok Stoneware Jar $125.00

C. Traditionally Loomed Andean Tapestry Rug

Splashed with brilliant colors and filled with remarkable detail, this extraordinary tapestry rug is reminiscent of the Inca artistry that serves as inspiration for Peruvian master weavers. Using the traditional two-pedaled loom as their parents and grandparents before them, artisans create the undulating pattern of Andean birds in multiple colors. Individually woven, each is a vibrant exhibit of Andean artistic heritage that will stand the test of time as an accent rug or as an heirloom wall hanging. Dry clean only. Handmade from wool and cotton yarns in Peru. Approximately 3'W x 5'L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72575 Andean Tapestry Bird Rug $198.00

B. Peruvian Filigree Earrings

The art of Peruvian filigree has evolved over the centuries through the influence of the Spanish combined with the indigenous roots of silver work in Peru. In creating these delicate sterling silver hearts, the artisan uses ancestral silversmithing techniques. Accented with South American amethyst for a subtle flash of color.

Post-style backs. Handcrafted in Peru. 1 3/4"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72572 Peruvian Filigree Earrings $68.00

D. Ancient Roman Glass Necklace and Earrings

Two-thousand-year-old glass vessels excavated from Roman ruins are transformed into iridescent pieces of alluring art glass, weathered by the elements to a rich patina. Working with artisans in the Middle East, jewelry designer Angie Olami selects the best examples and frames them in sterling silver. Just as each ancient perfume jar, vase, or bowl was unique, so is each modern accent.

The 1"-diameter pendant is suspended from an 18" snake chain. Matching earrings are approximately 1/2" in diameter and 1 1/4" long.

E. Miniature Egyptian Perfume Bottles

Egyptians are believed to be the first to incorporate fragrances and perfume into their cultural rituals, and intricate perfume bottles have been discovered within the tombs of Egyptian pharaohs. Our beautiful examples are handblown and shaped in Egypt using a technique that has been in use since the 13th century. Each is a unique creation accented with 24-karat gold, painted in delicate translucent colors, and finally topped with a sculpted leaf-shaped stopper. Fill them with perfumes or scented oils. No two are alike. Set of five.

Approximately 4"H. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72064 Egyptian Perfume Bottles $36.00

F. Peruvian Alpaca Sweater

High in the Peruvian Altiplano, people have been using soft, durable alpaca fiber to make warm yet lightweight garments for centuries. Today, international markets are being developed for this indigenous craft, which helps sustain artisans in their communities. Aymara and Quechua artisans in Peru use an alpaca blend to create this vivid garment that drapes like silk. Made entirely by hand, it is embellished with hand-knit scalloping at the cuffs and hem, and hand-painted ceramic buttons. Light, soft, easily packable, and wrinkle resistant. Hand-wash or dry clean. Handmade in Peru. Approximately 22 1/2"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72025 Peruvian Alpaca Sweater $159.00

Women's sizes S (4-6), M (8-10), L (12-14), XL (16-18).

A. Makara Silver and Turquoise Earrings

The Newari live in Nepal's fertile Kathmandu Valley. Their superior metal artistry includes repoussé designs on statues and prayer wheels dating back five millennia. The swirls on these hand-etched sterling silver earrings represent the curled tail of the makara, a fantastical Tibetan animal—equal parts crocodile, bear, lion, monkey, fish, and peacock—that represents power and steadfastness. The turquoise cabochon that dots each earring is said to bring good fortune. 1 3/4"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72541 Makara Silver and Turquoise Earrings $48.00

B. Chilean Inca Jewelry

In the Andes mountains at elevations of more than 12,000 feet, open trenches accessible only by mule yield gleaming stones, including lapis lazuli, the national stone of Chile. The Inca kingdom flourished in this part of the world, and today jewelers in family-owned shops in Santiago draw on geometric Inca designs to create pieces that blend history and geography into wearable art. The tapered forms of these lapis lazuli, turquoise, jasper, chrysocolla, and pyrite stones, outlined in sterling silver, echo the shape of ancient stone doorways found at Inca ruins. Necklace is 19"L. Earrings are 1 1/4"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

C. Provençal Indiennes Reversible Travel Jacket

Double your travel wardrobe with this lightweight reversible cotton jacket. For four millennia, some of the most captivating patterns have emerged from textile workshops of India and influenced styles the world over. In the 17th century, Indian printed cloth was so popular in France that Provençal mills began reproducing Indian patterns, resulting in the floral patterns we now associate with the south of France. This vibrant turquoise paisley jacket reverses to floral key lime. Patch pockets and side vents. 26" long. Machine wash. Made in India. NGS EXCLUSIVE

A. Marwari Hand-carved Wisdom Owl

In Indian lore, owls are regarded as wise, clever, and a little mysterious. Lakshmi, the goddess of prosperity, is often depicted riding an owl. This inquisitive blue creature is hand-carved and hand-painted by artisans in the southwestern Rajasthan region of Marwar. Owls are a common decoration in Hindu homes, and this calm creature reflects the handcrafted art that is a Marwari craft hallmark. Please allow for variations as each piece is unique.

Handmade in India. 6"W x 7 1/2"H x 3 1/4"D. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72427 Marwari Owl $58.00

C. Yangtze River Pearl Stretch Bracelets

Early in the 20th century, people discovered how to induce the transformation of a grain of sand into an organic gem, the pearl. Since that time, the natural irregularities of baroque cultured pearls have been treasured by women all over the world. These cultured freshwater pearls are available in shades of honeysuckle, goldenrod, lavender, and rose and are strung on generous elastic. The colors of these bracelets coordinate beautifully together or can be worn singly. Read more about pearls in the June 1997 NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC. Set of four includes one bracelet in each color. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72134 Set of Four Pearl Bracelets $28.00

B. Cloisonné Hummingbird Ornaments

The art of cloisonné enameling originated on the island of Cyprus during the 13th century b.c. Chinese artisans later became widely known for their mastery of this art form. These brightly colored cloisonné hummingbirds are a fine example of this technique. Hung from a window or used seasonally, this trio of hummingbirds is a constant reminder of springtime and beauty.

Approximately 3 1/2"H. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72098 Set of Three Cloisonné Ornaments $35.00

D. Haitian Peace Tree Sculpture

A uniquely Haitian art form, this rustic peace tree sculpture is handcrafted by artisans in workshops in Croix des Bouquets, using recycled cooking-oil drums. Once the drum is flattened and pounded, the artisan carefully cuts out the delicate shapes of the tree, leaves, and dove of peace, using a mallet and chisel. Hang it on an inside or outside wall and enjoy the shadows cast by its three-dimensional design. If placed outside, the piece will develop a beautiful patina. 12"W x 12"H x 2"D. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72591 Haitian Peace Tree Sculpture $58.00

G. Baltic Amber Heart Pendant

In 1701, Prussian King Frederick I commissioned an ornate room made from tons of translucent Baltic amber. Later, the intricate panels passed into Russian hands, and Catherine the Great installed them in her summer home in Pushkin. They disappeared in 1942, and their location remains a mystery. This captivating treasure engages the imagination, and you can carry a connection to this intriguing tale with you as a lightweight amber pendant. Carved by hand in Poland.

1 1/4"-wide pendant hangs from an 18" sterling silver chain. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72073 Baltic Amber Heart Pendant $68.00

E. African Shona Elephant Sculpture

Shona art, created by Zimbabwe's largest tribe, is one of the most significant art forms to come out of Africa in the 20th century. Family relationships, such as this pair, are often represented by the animal kingdom in Shona art. The artists believe that their chiseling and polishing releases the spirit form that is trapped within the rapoka stone. As each piece is one of a kind, please expect variation in the color and veining of the stone. Approximately 6 1/2"W x 8 1/2"H x 2"D. NGS EXCLUSIVE

#72537 Shona Elephant Sculpture $75.00

F. Mexican Silver Swallow Earrings

Adorned with intricate designs depicting swallows in flight, these earrings are handmade from sterling silver by a Mexican jeweler using the lost-wax technique. Dating back thousands of years, this method involves pouring molten silver into wax-filled molds. Once these initial castings have been produced, each is slowly finished by hand to produce an ageless work of Latin American artistry. Made in Mexico. 1 3/4"L. NGS EXCLUSIVE

D. One Part Physics Experiment, One Part Light and Shadow Magic

Phosphorescence is a quantum mechanical process where a substance can absorb energy and release it slowly in the form of light. Found in nature in some minerals and organisms, it is the "magic" in our Shadow Magic screen. Kids can strike a pose in front of the phosphorescent screen and have a friend flash the xenon strobe light. Once they move away they'll see their frozen silhouette on the screen. The included light pen lets them draw and write around their frozen shadow. The shadow imprints slowly disappear and the screen can be used over and over as an ongoing lesson in phosphorescent energy.

For ages 6 and up. Two AA batteries, not included. 23"W x 28"H.

#72544 Shadow Magic $25.95

B. Put the Night Sky in Motion With Our Motorized Talking Planetarium

Bring the night sky indoors as a rotating star-dome projects images of Northern Hemisphere stars on the ceiling. Our new talking planetarium tells space stories and nebula narratives about the 24 images from the National Geographic archives found in the guidebook. It's a perfect way to get kids excited about astronomy and space exploration. Guidebook and National Geographic map The Heavens included. For ages 8 and up. Four AA batteries, not included. 8"W x 9"H x 11"D.

#72531 National Geographic Talking Planetarium $48.00

E. Make Mercury Move and See Saturn Spin With Our Interactive Solar System Mobile

Put the planets into motion with this remote-controlled motorized mobile. With the touch of a button, nine planets follow realistic orbits around an illuminated ceiling-mounted sun. Use the light pointer to trace comets and shooting stars on the ceiling, or invent your own games to identify the planets. Take a personalized planetary tour at home with the included audio CD. Minor assembly required. For ages 6 and up. Three C and two AAA batteries, not included. 42"W x 8"H.

#72545 Interactive Mobile $34.95

F. Kids Can Engineer, Build, and Control Their Own Illumabot Robot

Learn how mechanical parts work together to create bigger and better machines with this 105-piece building kit that includes grinding gears, clamping claws, and flashing fiber optics. Young engineers can follow the color-coded plans or dream up their own Illumabot, then bring it to life with a 25-foot-range infrared wireless remote. An excellent toy for sharpening fine motor skills and developing imaginations. For ages 5 and up. Seven AA batteries, not included.

Innovative New SkyScout Instantly Knows Exactly What Stars Are in Its Sights

Simply point SkyScout at any celestial body, and it will instantly identify exactly what you are looking at.

Provides a list of top 20 most interesting viewable objects at any moment.

SkyScout can also display much of the information found in standard GPS units.

A. Point the revolutionary SkyScout at the night sky and it can identify celestial objects instantly. Using a combination of GPS technology, three-axis sensors that measure gravitational and magnetic fields, and its own astronomical database of more than 6,000 celestial objects, this incredible device knows exactly where you are on the planet and at precisely what angle you are holding the SkyScout. It uses this information to correctly identify the object in its sights. Alternatively you can choose from any of the constellations, galaxies, or nebulae in the database, and the SkyScout will direct you by using on-screen prompts to help you locate your selection with ease. It also provides astronomical information, historical data, and mythological background on the LED display. Listen to audio narration with the included earphones, and use the USB cable to download updates and new discoveries from your PC directly to the SkyScout. Winner of the Consumer Electronics Show Best of Innovation award for 2006. Two AA batteries, not included. 7 1/2"W x 2 1/2"L x 4"D.

A NOSTALGIC VIEW OF TIME GONE BY LIVING HISTORY
Interesting ways to keep the past alive

A. WWII Flight Jacket With Survival Map Lining

National Geographic performed an important service during World War II as we supplied maps to the Allies. Maps were often sewn in to the lining of flight jackets in case the pilots were shot down over enemy territory. This is a reproduction of the historical WWII flight jackets worn by the Allied pilots who flew perilous missions over wartime terrain, and the nylon lining features a re-creation of the survival maps of southern France. A surface of vintage French lamb leather adds to the authenticity. Features include some of the customizations that pilots preferred, such as the wind flap, front zipper with storm flap, knit cuffs and waistband, and zip top and side-entry pockets. Imported. SEA AND SHORE

A. Men's Traditional Irish Aran Sweater

For hundreds of years, women in the rural villages of the Aran Islands off the western coast of Ireland have knit natural wool sweaters for their fisherman kin. At weekly gatherings, they examined each other's work and continually invented intricate new stitches. Each of the stitches in this generously sized, traditional Aran sweater represents a facet of fishing culture: the honeycomb stitch for hard work, the cable stitch for safety on the waters, and the basket weave as a wish for a plentiful catch. 100% merino wool. Hand-wash or dry clean. Made in Ireland.

E. Oilskin Jacket Resists Soaking Rains and Gale-force Winds

Used for generations in Australia's outback, a land where compromise is rarely an option, oilskin jackets hold the elements at bay. This classic update was developed in Sydney using thick cotton canvas embedded under heat and pressure with a special oil/wax blend that responds to your body temperature—allowing moisture and air to escape while keeping the elements out. It's cotton-lined, packed with pockets, and one of the toughest coats we've ever seen. Hose it down and it's as good as new. Imported. NGS EXCLUSIVE
